TIGERS IMPROVE
IN TEAM WORK

Regulars Score Three Times
on Strong All-America
Eleven.

"PUNY" BLUCK PLAYS WELL

Practice Shows, However,
That 'Varsity Line is Weak.

Football practice on Rollins Field last night showed a marked improvement over that of the night before. Team work was more in evidence and the men took hold of the work with more spirit than usual.

In the scrimmage between the all-American team and the 'Varsity, the former succeeded in scoring only once and that was the result of a well-executed forward pass, which might not have worked with such success had it not been dark. The 'Varsity had no trouble in scoring three touchdowns, the "how-wow" play being responsible for one of them.

Tackling Dummy Repaired.

The tackling dummy, which "Puny" Bluck demolished Tuesday night, had been put in good order and the Tigers were put to work on that as a preliminary, after which they ran signals for half an hour. The men were thoroughly drilled in Coach Monilaw's "how-wow," and then had scrimmage with the all-class team. The "scrubs" fought gamely, but never succeeded in keeping the ball in the regulars' territory for any length of time.

Bluck showed up in the scrimmage in better form than he has displayed for some time. Frequently the big tackle broke through the line and threw the man carrying the ball for a loss. Nee also is playing great ball. Burrus is doing excellent work and if Driver is injured in the Kansas game he will be able to take his place and play it ably. That the line is still weak was shown by the frequency with which the "scrubs" got through. Several times in the scrimmage last night forward passes were spoiled because the line did not hold long enough to permit Graves and Alexander to pass the ball accurately.

EVEN MONEY BET
ON HARVARD HERE

Several Hundred Dollars Will Change Hands on the Game Saturday.

Several hundred dollars will change hands in Columbia as a result of the football games next Saturday. For the first time in ten years odds are not being laid on Yale to defeat Harvard. Several bets at even money, from $5 to $50, have been placed on the game.

One student of the University has bet $20 even that Iowa will defeat Kansas at Iowa City Saturday. Other small bets have been made on this game at even money.

Betting on the Missouri-Kansas game Thanksgiving Day has begun, with Kansas a slight favorite. Several wagers have been made at even money. A man who offered two to one on Kansas today was besieged with takers. He stopped after placing $40 on the Jayhawkers. Several small bets have been made that Kansas will defeat the Tigers by at least 10 points.

EX-CAPTAIN OF JAYHAWKERS IS IMPRESSED BY THE TIGERS

Carl Rouse, captain of the Kansas football team last year, saw the Washington-Missouri game at Columbia Saturday, says the Kansan. He says Missouri has the best team she has had in at least five years and that he was really surprised at the gam of football the Tigers are putting up.

Missouri, he says, is particularly strong on interference and the running of ends. The ex-captain is not so confident of winning the Thanksgiving game as he was before he saw Missouri play.

on "The Golden Age."

Gen. Z. T. Sweeney, author of "Under Ten Flags," will lecture at the University of Missouri auditorium this evening, in the Y. M. C. A. lecture course. His subject will be "The Golden Age." Gen. Sweeney is highly commended as a speaker.

The Topeka Capital says of this lecture: "Mr. Sweeney made his theme, 'The Golden Age,' a medium for everything that goes to make an entertaining lecture. It was full of wit, sense and eloquence."

Prof. Churton's Death.

Sir Oliver Lodge, president of the University of Birmingham, in an official announcement states: "The unfortunate death of Prof. Churton Collins, who had organized the School of Journalism in this University, compels us to reluctantly postpone its commencement until next October, but from then we hope that our school of journalism will take definite shape."

YALE AND HARVARD
READY FOR GAME

Battle This Year Promises to Be Close and Hard-Fought.

CHANGES IN LINE-UP AT YALE

Harvard Squad Cheered As it Goes Through Last Practice.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—The Yale football squad has begun its final practice for the game against Harvard, which promises to be the hardest struggle in years. The first line-up showed that the coaches had decided upon a change which probably will be permanent. Ted Coy, who played such a wonderful game against Princeton last Saturday, was ordered from end to fullback, his old position, and he played there through the signal drill.

When the eleven lined up for signal practice Tuesday afternoon, Capt. Burch was in the line-up for the first time in many weeks. He says that he has completely recovered from the sprained shoulder and that his broken collarbone has healed so that he can play without danger. He will begin at right end in the Harvard game, and expects to play through the entire contest.

There were other changes in the line-up, one of which will be permanent. That is the playing of Hobbs at left tackle. Lilley played the position against Princeton Saturday, but he is not such a heavy or experienced man as Hobbs. Hobbs played on Dartmouth two years ago, and before that was captain of the Andover team.

Changes in Team.

Logan took Hains' place at left end, but this change may not be permanent. Hains played the greater part of the game against Princeton and the coaches thought they would give him a rest yesterday. At quarterback was Pop Corey, son of William Ellis Corey, president of the steel trust, who, by his playing in the second half of the Princeton game, was made equal choice with Fred Johnson for the position.

Johnson was kicked in the head by Stegling in the Princeton game, and though practically recovered, the coaches believe that he should have another day's rest to get entirely well. Corey runs the team almost as well as Johnson, though the latter possesses some qualities which Corey lacks.

The two halfbacks Tuesday were Philbin and Wheaton. These are two of the most questionable positions on the team, especially right half. Murphy has a muscle bruise, but he may be able to begin the game next Saturday. Fred Daly and Murphy are sure of getting in the game.

Bridges remained at tackle, where he played a hard game Saturday, and there was never a minute's thought of changing the center trio—Andrus, Biddle and Goebel.

HARVARD "ROOTERS" CHEER
TEAM AT PRACTICE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 19.—The final practice for the Harvard 'Varsity in the stadium was held Tuesday afternoon, the students being allowed to enter the enclosure after 4 p. m. Today the 'Varsity squad will leave Cambridge at 2 p. m. for Farmington, Conn., where they will have their headquarters at the Elm Tree Inn.

On Thursday afternoon the 'Varsity will practice on Yale field from 1:30 to 3:30 o'clock. Practice for the 'Varsity today was a light signal drill. Defense formations were run through and Verweibe was first choice for fullback. It is now understood that Verweibe will be in the first line-up Saturday.

Capt. Burr was out on the field following the work of his men. The big fellow was in his football clothes and did some excellent punting, but did not get into the line-up. Withington was at left guard and the rest of the line-up remained the same as usual with the exception of Verweibe at fullback in place of Kennard.

Nearly 200 students marched down the field and cheered the team and the players. The men ran through signals and then left the field, giving room to the second team and their substitute, who scrimmaged.

During the game Capt. Burr, McKay and Kennard did some excellent playing. With the exception of Burr and Dunlap the players are in great condition. The Harvard team is the best put out by a Harvard coach in years, and will give the Elis the hardest battle of the year.
